THE 2020 PADDLER'S GUIDE

BOATS | BOARDS | EQUIPMENT | PADDLES
While rivers around the world are under continued threat from dams and development, a growing grassroots crusade is rising up in response. From Bosnia to Bolivia, Uganda to North Carolina, activists are raising their voices in defense of the voiceless and fighting for the rivers that run through us all. We salute these river warriors for their dedication and sacrifice in defending our most important places.

Clockwise: Ruth Alipaz Cuqui, founding leader of women’s training at the Chalalan Ecolodge and advocate for Bolivia’s free-flowing rivers; activists in support of free-flowing rivers; a Madidi National Park Guard learns swiftwater training to better monitor illegal activities on the Tuichi River; Rok Rozman, founder of the Balkan River Defence

It’s not a moment, it’s a movement.

Every fall, despite the excitement and anticipation that accompanies loading up for the trip to Nuremberg, Germany for the annual PaddleExpo, there is a small part of us that asks, "Why do we do this?" And yet, before we first walk in the halls or finish unpacking, we remember why. Because this is our industry, this is our passion, these are our people.

The internet has made it easier than ever for manufacturers to have a global client base, with dealers and consumers spread across the globe. It has also made it easier for companies to share what they are up to, from projects and partnerships to unveiling new products. It makes it easy to assume that as a result, publications like this one you are holding in your hand are redundant.

We beg to differ. Whether you are surfing our website, PaddlerGuide.com, or flipping through our pages, our goal in producing this annual Paddler’s Guide is two-fold: First, to provide you (free of charge, as always) with the information you need to find the product that is best for you. Second, to inform, inspire, and encourage others to take part in trends sweeping the industry—from producing quality products that last and reducing our reliance on single-use plastics to the rising popularity of sup foiling. We also hope to remind our readers that we as an industry are stronger and better together. When we come together to share ideas, there may be no limits to what we can achieve.

There remains no substitute for the connective energy that accompanies spending time together, no image or video that can replace the feel of a product in your hand. However, as the numbers of brick and mortar shops decline and virtual storefronts thrive, it becomes increasingly difficult for manufacturers to interact directly with those who use their products. The internet can be a minefield of information that overwhelms and distracts from where we would all rather be on the water. As a result, publications like ours become infinitely more important. More, we would argue there may be no better place to build the paddlesports community than PaddleExpo.

Despite the differences in our disciplines, despite the myriad reasons we paddle, the interactions that take place over these four days remind us we share something special: we love to get outside AND PADDLE. This simple relatability provides more than the excitement of seeing old friends and new products. It allows for a sense of belonging.

Why do we go to PaddleExpo each year? Why do we bother to put together this guide, or organize the Product of the Year Awards? We do it not because we have to but because we have to but because we want to. Because it feels like coming home. However, both the halls of PaddleExpo and the pages of this guide would be empty without all of you. We want to extend a moment of gratitude and appreciation for all those who contribute to making this industry what it is. We raise our paddles and salute you—our readers, paddle partners, and friends. Here’s to many more days on the water together.

Happy Paddling.

The Team at Kayak Session.

Two Time World Champion (Musky Fly Fishing and Offshore Kayak Fishing) James McBeath has been the head of marketing for Jackson Kayak, Orion Coolers, and most recently, Blue Sky Boat works for the past 10 years. This November, a new brand group called Jackson Adventure, was launched. We talked to James about the recent changes at Jackson Kayak, including the new name and new strategies, as well as their new distribution system, which could influence the Paddlesports industry for the many years to come!
Paddlers Guide Magazine: James, there have been quite a few changes recently with Jackson Kayaks, the name to begin with... What is the idea behind the launch of Jackson Adventure?

James McBeath: Jackson has soared to new heights and is no longer manufacturing just kayaks. We are now producing, as you mention above, coolers, kennels, and boats. While the core and our hearts will always remain in paddlesports, our audience has reached other niches throughout the outdoors, and we needed to embrace them too. Finding their place on our website and in our social media actions, etc., has been difficult. We decided it was time to create a kind of “mothership” to host all our new-found enthusiasts and to encourage integration between all the communities we serve.

Paddlers Guide Magazine: What is the benefit of such a change?

James McBeath: The biggest is the reduction of websites and marketing projects to be managed. We have a marketing group that has been spread thin over the last 4-5 years, and having only one website and only one series of promotional actions has helped significantly. We have been able to focus on what we do best vs. struggle to deliver messaging, etc. on many fronts. We also see whitewater enthusiasts, for example, getting to know our other niche brands. Everyone needs coolers—just as we feel everyone needs to try whitewater kayaking or kayak fishing. Folks can now see our true breadth of product line rather than glimpses of what we offer in their particular arena.

Paddlers Guide Magazine: Beyond the name change, the most significant evolution is that JK is now “going direct”, something companies in the Paddlesports business and beyond have been considering for a few years now. What made you take the leap?

James McBeath: Honestly, the biggest reasons are two-fold: First, we have long had the highest traffic of any paddlesport oriented website out there. We have a huge capacity to capture the imagination of our enthusiast markets and can get our dealers full benefit of that traffic. The second is that we found a way to benefit our loyal dealers. This has always been the kicker in regards to going online direct for a manufacturer, and we found an exciting new formula to make it work for all of us.

Paddlers Guide Magazine: One of the risks (theoretically), is damaging a dealer network on which you based your sales for many years. Can you explain how this new system strengthens the dealer’s position?

James McBeath: We found a way to tier rewards to our dealers so that they achieve the very same margin they had before, with additional margins they didn’t have previously. We have created situations in the buying cycle that have never existed and have added many plusses to what they make off of sales of Jackson products. I’m not going to get into any more detail, but suffice to say this program strengthens the dealer’s financial situation by taking full advantage of this new online direct sales world we live in and the traffic we generate to our product pages.

Paddlers Guide Magazine: Do you see this as the model everyone will adopt sooner or later?

James McBeath: Not really to the full extent we have it. One, you need web traffic, Amazon has the traffic, but you cannot create this program around Amazon. Our web traffic is huge and has been that way for years. I do not see marketing programs getting to where we are any time soon. Second, I see a mix of big-box dealers and specialty dealers in most other manufacturer’s mix. Big-box will not go for the model we are playing with.

“EVERYONE NEEDS COOLERS—JUST AS WE FEEL EVERYONE NEEDS TO TRY WHITETWATER KAYAKING OR KAYAK FISHING.”

Paddlers Guide Magazine: Would that be the same for Europe and the rest of the world, or is the focus only on North America at this stage?

James McBeath: North America for now, but we have plans...Unfortunately, tariff situations in Europe make this difficult at the moment. Again, we have plans.

Paddlers Guide Magazine: Eric Jackson, the company founder, recently stepped away from his role as president, which surprised many. How do you see this impacting what has long been known to be a paddler-owned and driven company?

James McBeath: This didn’t come as a surprise, and EI’s still in the mix. You aren’t gonna get him out of a whitewater boat any time soon! Emily, Dane, Nick, Stephen, and Clay are the head of Jackson’s whitewater program now, and we have incredible team leadership in fishing with Jameson, Drew, Matt Ball, Aaron, and myself. We will see changes with them in stronger positions as team leaders. With their increased involvement in product and community, the organization will only get stronger. 2020 will see this incredible gang take huge strides within the community with new outreach programming and more. You will see incredible new efforts in boat design as well! The heart of Jackson beats strong.

Paddler’s Guide Magazine: How has Jackson’s management changed with all these announcements?

James McBeath: This past two months, we’ve seen a new team come in as interim executives to help us through our growth processing. After 12 years of steady growth, we are auditing our work process, management structure, and more. We haven’t ever done this type of exercise, and with all the growth we’ve had, it’s important. The end result has been decisions that will improve our bottom line, strengthen all our processes, and reestablish key roles within the company. Under all this growth in Jackson, you will see the same core community leadership and incredible products, backboned with a strong manufacturing and financial infrastructure. The owners of Jackson have always been and will continue to be supportive of all these initiatives.
Walking the corridors of “SUP Village” of PaddleExpo2019 was akin to being on the streets of a burgeoning city or walking the halls of a modern art museum. The reason for the sensory overload? Increasingly, instead of working exclusively with in-house graphic designers, SUP companies are choosing to partner with emerging or established artists to create limited-edition models and eye-catching designs. This choice is two-fold, one to set themselves apart in what has become a confusingly homogenous market, and two, to create a product that is aesthetically pleasing and capable of forming a strong connection with its user.

In the highly saturated, entry-level inflatable cruiser market especially, it has become difficult for the average consumer to distinguish the best board for them. Similar to picking a bottle of wine by its label, while many consider the essential factors, like material, size, and shape, consumers are routinely drawn to the board that is the most aesthetically pleasing, one that speaks to them or “brings them joy.”

We are more likely to associate positive attributes to things we find attractive. Don Norman has written extensively about this phenomenon, which he calls the attractiveness bias, in his book Emotional Design: Why We Love (or Hate) Everyday Things. “Beyond the design of an object, there is a personal component as well, one that no designer or manufacturer can provide,” argues Norman. “We take pride in them,” he continues, “…because of the meanings they bring to our lives... A favorite object is a symbol, setting up a positive frame of mind, a reminder of pleasant memories, or sometimes an expression of one's self.”

“What separates great products from good ones?” asks the Interactive Design Foundation in their course Emotional Design- How to Make Products People Love. The distinction, they argue, lies in how a product makes users feel. As more companies choose to focus on the aesthetic in increasingly creative ways, the importance of this distinction becomes evident.

Starboard SUP’s Tikihine series boards feature artwork designed by their team rider and World Champion paddle boarder Sonni Hönscheid. Three different Tikihine “art you can ride” designs are options for many of Starboard’s entry-level board range, from their iGo all-around cruiser to the 11’2 Wave. Hönscheid’s paintings share her interpretations of the places she has visited but leave space for the viewer’s interpretations. “My paintings often tell a story,” says Hönscheid. “But the viewer... always discovers new context in the flowing lines.”

Exclusivity also contributes to the feeling of owning something special. Swiss-based Indiana Paddle and Surf Company, whose boards are known for their monochromatic tiki patterns, offer colorful LE models each year. Their Inflatable Limited Edition offers a broader range of choices, but only for a lucky few. “We produce no more than 20 pieces of each model,” states their 2020 catalog, furthering the incentive for those who want to stand out from the pack.

Design, from color palettes to shapes and lines, can also help to establish a brand identity. JBAY.ZONE has chosen to highlight that they are “Made in Italy” by partnering with Italian Doodle Artist FRA! Design. For JBAY.ZONE, FRA! Design’s expressive ability catches the eye with an easily recognizable style. His illustrations tell the story of a day out on the SUP, a story about sport, relaxation, and freedom: It is the story of the JBAY.ZONE brand.

The Barcelona-based Anomy SUP has built its brand around aesthetics and the desire to stand out by partnering with artists around the world. While many of their boards share the same basic specs in terms of dimensions or materials, each model offers artists a creative platform and buyers something that is fun to paddle. Their boards are fun to look at, but more importantly, they speak to the need of individuals and brands alike to find ways to set themselves apart. “Anyone of us is like no other, different, unique,” Anomy argues. “Our style, what we wear, what we drive, what we ride, is part of our expression of ourselves.” Why sacrifice this when we SUP?

It is undeniable that the stronger an emotional attachment we form with a product, the more we identify with it, the more likely we are not only to purchase it but to enjoy using it. Art, it would seem, is as good a way as any to help differentiate one product from another when it comes to catching, and keeping not just our eyes, but our hearts.
In 2020, many industries are set to increase spending on social media through targeted ads and an influencer-style approach. As paddlesports attempts to compete, it begs the question, “What is the role of the pro paddler? Is it changing before our eyes?”

The “Pro” paddlesports athlete or local coach has always served as an influencer or brand ambassador. While sponsorship can be a game of tit for tat, where companies provide products for a free or discounted rate in exchange for representation and exposure, on the whole, paddlesports has maintained a healthy balance, choosing to work with credible athletes who benefit their sport. Yet, as companies’ use of social media for exposure increases, where is the pro paddler most valuable?

When it comes to sponsorship, companies have a long list of demands and qualifying characteristics that may surprise the aspiring professional. Those chosen are key players in their sport, contributing in ways beyond promoting a product or generating numbers and “likes.” Instead of a straight-up exchange of product/discount for sharing or tagging, companies ask for deliverables ranging from content creation and involvement in product development to clinics and event attendance. “People think that their following and likes are the basis as to whether or not they are qualified to be a sponsored athlete when it takes so much more. For starters, your Instagram page does not really tell me who you are, what your moral values are, or the way you interact with our consumers,” explains Jackson Adventures Team Manager Emily Jackson.

What are companies looking for? In short, authenticity and legitimacy: Someone who will represent the brand and help them not just reach, but build, the paddlesports community. “Though we increasingly use social media to promote the brand,” explains Palm Equipment Marketing Assistant Janice Lo, “We still primarily seek athlete paddling credibility as the number one reason to partner with anyone.” For Palm, the ideal ambassador helps sell a story and create something people aspire to. And yes, Lo, admits, this can benefit sales if people want what ambassadors are wearing.

Partnering with individuals who extol the virtues of your product on their social media outlets is an undeniably practical approach to target a broad audience. Because the majority of social media users are between 16 and 34 (statista.com), one benefit is that social media allows access to a demographic traditionally difficult for marketers to reach. Here-in lies a more subtle advantage of social media: Not the ability to promote specific individuals, brands, or products, but helping the industry and the lifestyle as a whole gain traction with a new generation. However, while many current and potential paddlesport lovers fall in this age bracket, “You still have to look at other avenues to present your brand’s story and products,” reminds NRS.

Regardless of the avenue used, companies must produce quality products and remain authentic to the brand and the culture they represent. “Our ‘influencers’ are well-rounded, well-respected paddlers on and off social media, explains NRS. Their goal is to earn the trust of the end-user, so when a consumer opts for NRS gear, it’s because “they believe in the message an athlete has shared about a product, not because they have been bombarded with ‘12 posts per month.’” Because it is easy to research products online, simply trying to gain customers from a social campaign is challenging. People need a stronger reason to make a purchase—whether it is price or a personal connection with the brand or pros who represent it.

Though social media features like comments and stories allow brands to be much more personable and accessible, there is no real substitute for the personal interaction and community built through paddle-fests and events and time on the water. And, while social media has enabled companies to reach a much larger audience, “it has also placed much more pressure on brands and pro paddlers to create better media in higher quantities,” argues Palm’s Lo. With the abundance of images of people exploring beautiful places on social media feeds, she points out, what used to stand out feels common-place; you now need something extraordinary to hold consumer attention.

The reality is the pro paddler has long been more than an influencer. Though social media is one tool allowing brands to reach beyond the existing paddlesports community, the real role and influence of the pro paddler remain most valuable where it always has been: on the water.
PADDLESPORTS AGAINST PLASTIC

PADDLESPORTS TAKES A STAND AGAINST PLASTIC, AVOIDING, COLLECTING, AND REPURPOSING IT TOWARDS A BETTER FUTURE.

Plastic pollution has become ubiquitous, impacting all who partake in paddlesports. Now, all of paddlesports is working to make a difference, from consumer to manufacturer, production to playtime.

Visit SUP athlete Cal Major’s Paddle Against Plastic website, and you will find horrifying facts about the impacts of single-use plastic on the environment. For example, did you know that an estimated eight million metric tons of plastic trash ends up in our oceans every year? Worse, 80% of marine litter originates from land-based sources, meaning that to make it to the sea, it traveled via our waterways, our rivers, lakes, canals, and streams.

Major, who organizes Paddle Against Plastic SUP expeditions as well as ocean clean-ups, is not alone in her passion for generating awareness of the impacts of single-use plastics and inspiring others to make a change. However small. While local initiatives and individuals have been calling for and driving environmental-awareness and change as long as there has been paddling, more paddlesport brands are contributing than ever before, from altering manufacturing processes and materials to partnering with other initiatives.

Aligning the interests of consumers and manufacturers in favor of supporting healthier waterways is a powerful catalyst for change. While kayak manufacturers have used cost-effective methods of recycling waste polyethylene for years, recently, more companies are choosing to promote the environmental benefits of this choice. Why? It is what the market wants to see. Consider, for example, the inspiration created by Palm/Islander Kayaks’ Odyssey kayak, which is made using recycled-marine waste and debuted at PaddleExpo 2018.

In addition to environmentally friendly decisions in the manufacturing process - using recycled materials, responsibly managing waste, etc., companies are partnering with and supporting existing organizations or advocates. Take Outdoors is currently working in partnership with the Let’s Do It World organization who organizes the World Cleanup Day each year. They will be launching a non-profit kayak rental service in the Baltic Sea region where rentals are free for paddlers who collect trash. The German-based Lettmann supports The Clean Rivers project, while this October, The UK-based Dewerstone, whose versatile Lifeshorts 2.0 are made using recycled bottles, joined the organization 1% For The Planet, committing 1% of all their sales to support environmental non-profits, such as Save Our Rivers. “We need to continue to make good choices in what we do and use our influence to educate and aid others in making good choices, too,” explains Dewerstone founder Rory Atton. 1% for the planet was begun by Patagonia founder Yvon Chouinard and Craig Mathews, founder of Blue Ribbon Flies, in 2002. Their belief that because companies profit from the resources they take from the earth, they should protect those resources, helps connect us back to why many of us chose paddlesports in the first place.

Starboard SUP supports many of their athletes in their campaigns for healthier waterways. In addition, like global powerhouse brand adidas, Starboard has chosen to partner with PARLEY, a company focused on reducing and preventing ocean plastic pollution. “To create change,” Parley’s website proclaims, “We can stop producing more plastic right away and use up-cycled marine plastic waste instead. Everyone has a role to play.” Their three-part strategy includes avoid plastic wherever possible, intercept plastic waste, and redesign the material itself.

For 2020, in addition to their work organizing river clean-ups and minimizing their environmental impact in the production process, all of Peak’s new whitewater and touring jackets and legwear will be made from new fabric containing yarn made from recycled plastic. Their redesigned packaging uses recycled cardboard tags and a piece of twine rather than individually wrapping items in single-use plastic film. When founder and owner Pete Astles collected the 2019 Paddler’s Awards Special Jury Prize for Peak’s “Eco Initiative,” he commended others for their efforts in actively protecting the waterways that drive and inspire our sports. Peak also issued a subtle challenge, asking the room, “Will you join us in making this a priority?”

“People protect what they love,” argued legendary ocean-explorer Jacques Cousteau. While true, sometimes we need a kick-start in the right direction. With companies supporting environmental initiatives like beach and river clean-ups and education sessions, plus finding new, environmentally-conscious ways to build and ship quality products that last, we as an industry are building a community committed to protecting and preserving the areas we love.

The belief that manufacturers can and should educate and influence consumers in making good choices is infectious. However, we as an industry still have significant room for improvement. And, the ultimate power may remain with the consumer. When buying new, yes, it is better to support companies and products that have been sustainably manufactured, regardless of price. However, perhaps what is ultimately best for everyone—the planet included—is investing in quality over quantity. Slowing down and producing less, but committing to gear that lasts.
WORLD WITHOUT WASTE.

LET’S CLEAN UP TOGETHER.

Tahe Outdoors along with the World Cleanup Day organization is introducing a non-profit project for reducing marine waste all over the world. The kayaking gear is provided by Tahe Outdoors and is fully made out of either recycled or residual materials.

As industries search to find the most environmentally-friendly approach, what if the real environmentally-friendly process is producing and using quality products that actually last?

Paddlesport companies are currently striving to find ways to reduce their environmental impact, from improving manufacturing processes and reducing plastic to partnering with organizations focused on creating cleaner waterways. As beneficial as all this is, perhaps we are overlooking a subtler method of having a significant impact: producing products that last.

No doubt producing high-quality products that can last for years, or even a lifetime, offer significant value to the consumer. While quality comes at price consumers must be willing to pay, often what is good for the consumer is also good for the environment. Not having to frequently replace products reduces the need for packaging and shipping, to soft goods, quality products that will not need replacing for many years benefit all of us. Loyal customers, quality products, and a lifetime of paddling memories are only a few benefits. Improved by knowing we are contributing to the health of the environment we love.

Producing quality products that last requires forethought and can be expensive. It means sourcing quality materials and looking thoroughly at design and the manufacturing process to identify and prevent potential flaws, as well as considering what the life-span of a product-even its end of life home- looks like.

In environments where safety is paramount, it makes sense to make quality products consumers can trust. In addition, long-lived, durable products can become iconic representations of who a brand is and what they stand for. But considering the demanding and dynamic river and ocean environments paddlesport products are used in, is it reasonable to expect products a lifetime? It depends on how you define a lifetime.

To reduce waste and keep hard-to-recycle products out of landfills, companies need to be willing to repair and extend the life of their products. Consumers must also remember that just because something is no longer new doesn’t mean it isn’t functional, and that there is a difference between use and abuse. There is a saying that “a carbon boat never dies, it only becomes older and heavier,” referencing the material’s seemingly endless ability to be repaired. Carbon is far from the only material with this property. In fact, the majority of materials used in paddlesports, including PVC, dropstitch, rubber, wood, and polyethylene are weldable or patchable.

The US-based Aquabound claims sustainability as one of the tenets of their company philosophy. In addition to numerous sustainable and environmentally-friendly production methods, Aquabound estimates that customers who care for their product properly are likely to obtain excellent service from their paddles for 20 years or more. “When the unthinkable does occur, more often than not, our paddles can be repaired rather than discarded,” they state proudly. Kokatat is well-known for the in-house repairs they offer on their drysuits, and US powerhouse NRS is currently building a repair facility to help keep their products in service longer. They are also planning to launch a shopping site for used products this spring to give usable gear a second life.

Quality has long-driven many of the smaller, family-owned companies that define the European paddlesport market, like Gatz Kanus and Lettmann. Both Gatz and Lettmann have many reasons for making quality products, from environmental impact to using them themselves. Arno Gatz’s goal when building his first canoe was the same as it is now: build a quality product that can last for decades. “It is not unusual that our customers or their kids still enjoy paddling their 30+-year-old canoes today,” says Arno’s son, Olaf.

The German-based Lettmann, who develops, designs, and produces a wide variety of boats, paddles, and accessories in their factory, also offers repairs on laminated fiber composites and thermoplastics, including polyethylene, regardless of who initially made the product. Their website also sells used boats, including ones not designed or manufactured by Lettmann for an environmentally and cost-friendly purchase option. “A product which lasts holds its value-even if you sell it after 10 or 20 years. The other benefit is that production always has the biggest footprint for the planet,” reminds Jochen Lettmann.

Foiling is changing the SUP Game, opening up more days on the water, and, hopefully, attracting more people to the sport.

“There is no question that our industry is going to be impacted by the increasing popularity of foiling,” writes SUPboarder Magazine’s Rueben Ellis. Ellis is in good company when touting the appeal of SUP foiling, whether for a downwinder or surf session. This once-niche discipline is on the verge of becoming mainstream, as evidenced this year at Paddle Expo with more companies than showcasing a wider-range of foil-specific boards- and the foil to go with them.

Though further integrated into the SUP race and surf consciousness than ever before, foiling technology is far from novel. Josh Sampiero, writing for Red Bull, points out that the first hydrofoil boats existed as far back as 1906 and that windsurfers experimented with foils as early as the 1960s. Surf aficionados will remember Laird Hamilton experimenting with boots and a foil board in the early 2000s. The recent rise in popularity can be attributed in part to a 2016 video of Kai Lenny catching a double wave on his downwind race foil that went viral, blasting foiling into the spotlight. Now, three short years later, the internet (and oceans) abound with videos of pros and amateurs foiling it up.

Foiling is opening up near-limitless potential. As waterman James Casey captioned one of the countless posts of him SUPfoiling on Instagram. Foils open up more surf days as they work best slightly further out in front of the wave where a SUP would stall and lose speed. “Foilin is sort of terraforming the conditions to suit our needs,” says Kai Lenny. “It’s a means to ride in a high-performance way on small waves that don’t usually allow you to do high-performance things.”

Helping SUP foiling gain traction and visibility is that manufacturers worldwide are shaping and producing a more extensive range of foil-specific boards. For 2020, Sic Maui has included a foil board line, and others, like JP Australia, have expanded their range of foil-specific and cross-over boards in shape and sizes. Additionally, some brands, like Naish and F-One, are choosing not to partner with foil-specific companies like Neil Pryde or Go Foil, but produce their own signature foil models. In turn, the increase in foil-specific options allows athletes to shift to foiling as their primary focus rather than treat it as a side-discipline.

As more individuals fall in love with the freedom and opportunity foiling allows, this once niche discipline further enters the collective consciousness of the sport, becoming what some picture or aspire to when they think about SUP. Though foiling remains a discipline for initiates to approach with caution- those foil masts and wings are sharp- “It’s hard to argue that it’s not a great sport when you see guys and girls getting minute-long rides and doing big swooping turns on one-foot waves,” says SUP athlete Sky Solbach. When it comes to downwinders, “I don’t think there are many people out there who would say that gliding effortlessly across open ocean swells for miles at a time is not a fun thing to do,” he continues.

As to the question, “Should the increasing popularity of foiling be seen as a threat to the current SUP market?”, for SIC Global Brand Manager Anthony Scaturro, the answer is both yes and no. While foiling may be luring people “away from SUP,” the excitement around the renaissance in paddlesports, especially with the new wing foils and convertible SUP/Windsurf foils, makes “the whole sector more exciting, [which] should draw in more participants as a whole.” To me,” Scaturro says, “this is ultimately good for our sport.”

Made in EU. Made from rubber.
Bernie Steidl, owner and founder of the S2S SOURCE TO SEA whitewater kayak school and shop in the Austrian Alps, is an active and successful player in the current European retail scene. We met with him to hear his recipe for success.

PG Mag: What is S2S? How did you get your start?
BS: I founded S2S about 10 years ago. It started as a small kayak school with a kayak camp in Corsica together with my brother Daniel. After a few years, we began selling equipment to our students, and slowly, the team grew. We expanded more and more, and five years ago established a “real” kayak and online shop that serves as our Kayak School base in Innsbruck, Austria.

PG Mag: How does having both the school and shop complement each other? Would it be economically possible to have either one or the other, instead of both? Would you encourage others to find a similar balance?
BS: That’s a good question! From a purely economic point of view, neither the profit of the kayak school nor the profit of the kayak shop justifies the efforts my team and I are making. But I still think we’re on the right track because we do what we love to do. I would not recommend starting a shop to finance a kayak school or vice versa. The danger of getting bogged down and losing quality is very high because you lose focus on the main thing. We have already experienced this several times.

PG Mag: How did you choose where to locate your shop and establish your base?
BS: Our kayak shop and kayak school base are located in the Tyrolian Alps, near lots of rivers and close to Natterer See Lake. It is a place where we feel comfortable, where we love to paddle, and where customers can try out products. The kayak school offers camps around the world and travels all year round. This year, we’ve already been to Corsica, Italy, Norway, Slovenia, Peru, and Switzerland, for example.

PG Mag: How would you describe the German and Austrian market?
BS: In Austria, there are relatively few kayakers. Therefore, the majority of our customers - for the kayak school and the shop - come from outside Austria. The whitewater kayak market is highly competitive because most of the business today takes place online. For many customers, it almost does not matter where they buy their products. The main things for them are that they do not have to wait too long for their goods to be delivered and the price is right.

PG Mag: What portion of your business does your student base represent?
BS: I think about 30% of our clients shop with us. But the same people would probably buy from us even if we did not have a kayak school. I have the feeling customers are currently shopping at a price-driven level because they already know which products they want to buy.

PG Mag: What has been the most significant change since you started the business?
BS: The biggest change and challenge is clearly the shift to online shopping. Today, pure shopfronts without an online business can only be kept alive when strategically located.

PG Mag: You also recently shifted away from carrying most brands to a select few. What motivated this change?
BS: We have grown relatively fast in recent years and have intensified our cooperation with a few companies. The majority of our team is sponsored by companies within the industry and is actively involved in developing new products. Some companies our team works with include, for example, Sandiline, Waka Kayaks, EXO Kayaks, Spade Kayaks, etc. For us, the logical conclusion was that by primarily focusing on these brands, we can develop and grow together.

PG Mag: What percentage of your business currently takes place online?
BS: Around 75% of sales take place online, but we also offer the ability to test every single product we carry.

PG Mag: Has the taxes on US products impacted you at all?
BS: Yes, for sure. The new import taxes on US products have meant that it is hardly possible to sell them at a reasonable price. For this reason, we have decided to take these products out of inventory or not to stock them anymore.

PG Mag: What is your leading segment- Creek, river play, freestyle? Why?
BS: Creeking followed by river play. I would say this is because that’s what the rivers in our region are famous for. And also because it’s what we enjoy most ourselves.

PG Mag: What is your recipe for success?
BS: Around 30% of our clients shop with us. But the same people would probably buy from us even if we did not have a kayak school. I have the feeling customers are currently shopping at a price-driven level because they already know which products they want to buy.

PG Mag: What is your vision for the future of the evolution of the Paddlesports dealer?
BS: I think we should all pay more attention to the quality of the goods we sell and less to quantity. Personally, I prefer to sell one, good, high-quality product with a reasonable profit instead of several products at a sale price.

NELO - 560

The New 560 has evolved from the old 560. A lot of people ask us, “Why is it shorter than 6.4 meters-long like most other skis?” The answer is simple: its relative shortness makes it one of the easier downwind surfskis to paddle, to steer, and to balance in all conditions. The seat has been made wider and lowered to accommodate a much wider part of the paddling population. “Stability before ability.”

SPADE KAYAKS - ROYAL FLUSH

The Royal Flush is an ultra-dynamic kayak that excels in deep waters but doesn’t mind a low water creek run either. The Royal Flush delivers, especially if you are an active and pronounced paddler. If you are more of a reactive paddler and prefer low volume creeks, the Ace of Spades might be the better boat for you. But if you like to pull the stick and swing the hips, the Royal Flush is your ’Hattori Hanzo Sword’ of extreme whitewater weapons. It’s a dynamic boat that we love for coaching on Slovenia’s class III, but also as our weapon of choice for the annual trip down Norway’s big water runs.

- Length: 274 cm/8’11" | Width: 68 cm/26.6" | Volume: 335 L/88.5 lb

LETTMANN - MANTA

The Manta is designed to be a highly competitive kayak for extreme races. At 272 cm, it is within the allowed length limit. Its most noticeable features are the aggressive bow rocker and stern spoiler. The purpose of the rocker is to lift the bow and clear holes whilst keeping you on track and in control to move forward. The stern “spoiler” design assists in exiting holes by boosting the boat forward and out to maintain your momentum; great for speed in a race and equally useful for surviving gnarly hydraulics.

WAVE SPORT - PHOENIX

SPADE KAYAKS - BLACK JACK 2.0

The 2019 Black Jack got a little design update to make it even better! The flat bottom and a pronounced rail deliver dynamic reactivity for smaller size paddlers and women. The tips of the boat seem slicey, but are high volume due to their width. The Black Jack 2.0 allows the paddler to turn the boat effortlessly with only a sweep stroke, paddle precise lines in big volume, but also stay high and dry over steep drops. Without edging, it seems to run independently of cross currents but presents a dynamic edge performance already in modest lean angles.

Length: 256 cm/8'5 | Width: 66 cm/26" | Volume: 285 L/75 G | Weight: 20 kg/44 lb |
Paddler Weight Range: 60-85 kg/132-187 lb | Level: High End |

EXO KAYAK - T-REX (L)

After years of testing, confronting ideas and prototypes, Exo is proud to present the ultimate creeking machine. Rounded edges give it stability and allow it to be manouevrable and easy to handle at speed, making a change of direction no problem. The upper hull is optimized for predictable resurfacing. Thanks to the wise distribution of the volumes, despite the big size of the T-Rex, it feels like a smaller boat, but you will definitely benefit from the volume when you need it!

Length: 270 cm/8'9 | Width: 65 cm/25" | Weight: 20 kg/44 lb | Paddler Weight Range: 70-100 kg/154 lb |

SOUL WATERMAN - CHAOS MONKEY

If you’re the kind of guy that just wants to plug a whole bunch of really gnarly stuff, this is your boat. This is you making sense of the chaos. Most of the volume is centered on the paddler, complemented by many unique design features that keep this magical boat on the surface and going downstream. The peaked “cathedral” deck and extreme nose rocker keep this boat floating high and dry. The hull is designed to flow with the water – in just two strokes you’ll accelerate to cruising speed. The flat hull and rounded, forgiving rails allow you to turn on a dime both on edge and flat.

LETTMANN - GRANATE LARGE

We put quite a few years of development into the “Granate.” Four world championship winners, kayaking teachers, world-class paddlers, and critical customers all contributed to the development of the Granate by testing pre-series models intensely. The result: the combination of subtle edges and a flat bottom with a long waterline makes this one-of-a-kind kayak fast, maneuverable and directionally stable. The voluminous nose ensures controlled loops, even after impressive waterfalls, while the volume in the tail enables fast progress after big holes. Although the Granate is designed for the rough, beginners will also benefit from its balanced handling characteristics and rounded, easy to roll-up hull.

VERUS KAYAKS - GLADIATOR

The Gladiator was designed to create a displacement hull with a smooth rocker that transitioned from bow to stern. The Gladiator is 76 gallons, which lends itself well to being what we envisioned as a ‘playful’ creeker, somewhere between a slicey boat and full-blown creek boat. Its versatility makes it a perfect match for challenging creeks or substantial eddy lines, and ideal for stern squirts.

SOUL WATERMAN - DISCO

The Disco was THE game changer in freestyle kayaking. It ushered in a new era of moves and was an incredibly easy boat to use as a fun, playful river runner. We have kept the main design features that made it so successful while using the feedback from thousands of paddlers to improve it: a looser, faster hull, vastly improved ergonomics, slightly adjusted volume balance in the bow and stern, and modern outfitting. But it keeps the ease and overall balance that made the Disco a boat that people are still out there buying just to get one.

Stand Up Paddling is one of the fastest growing segments of paddle sports. Every day, more and more people around the world are hopping on boards and heading out to enjoy the water. From fitness to family fun, from surfing waves to racing long distance, stand up has a broad appeal to anyone looking to access rivers, lakes, or oceans. Many fall in love with SUP for its versatility. SUP offers surfers a better view of incoming sets and thus the ability to catch more waves—in the ocean or opening up access to new shred spots on the river. While the first stand up boards were made like a surfboard, with epoxy resin and fiberglass around a foam core, today companies are using materials as far reaching as rotomolded plastic, PVC Dropstitch, and coconut husks. Inflatables have gained a considerable portion of the market, allowing paddle board lovers to take their passion with them on the go or on far-flung multi-day missions. Have board, will paddle, goes the old saying. It has never been truer than now.

STARBOARD - ALLSTAR AIRLINE UNLIMITED 14’0

Faster than most hard boards. The aramid cable locks the board in shape when inflated, creating a solid, trustworthy hull sensation. The patented Airline Technology utilizes a pre-set free-floating cable. The pre-set cable is slightly shorter than the board so that when the board inflates, the cable comes under tension and stiffens the board significantly. Winner, Special Jury Prize PADDLEexpo 2018 and World Champion Connor Baxter swears by it. This efficient, lightweight technology is the future of inflatable performance boards. New: Race handles for beach starts, EVA standing tray for a wider stance and extra stability, new head welded rail. Additional sizes: 12’6 x 27”, 14’0 x 24”, 14’0 x 26”.

NAISH SURFING - MALIKO INFLATABLE 14’0 X 27” FUSION CARBON

The Maliko 14’0 is designed without compromise and made to win races. The shape is inspired by our multiple world title-winning Maliko hard boards. The nose cuts through water, and the drag is reduced to the max to go as fast as possible. The key element is stiffness, thanks to the high pressure that our new construction allows. When combined with the double carbon stringer on top and bottom, this board is the stiffest inflatable board yet. This construction ensures stiffness along the board while the two stringers are strategically located under the rider’s feet.

Where would a boat be with a paddle? Length, blade size, angle, and shape, winged or flat, alloy tips, carbon, plastic, or wood... the variables surrounding paddle choice are almost infinite, and we all go around in circles (sometimes literally) trying to work out what works best. From the high end, with advanced technology and lightweight construction, to the mid-range and entry level, paddles are shaped and manufactured in a variety of shapes, angles, styles sizes to propel us to where we need to go. Common materials at the high end include carbon, wood, and fiberglass, down to heavier plastics and aluminum at the entry level. The paddle should feel like an extension of your body, connecting you to the water and your chosen paddle sport.

EASTPOLE PADDLES - ALEUTIAN PADDLE

The Aleutian Paddle is another kind of traditional paddle, coming originally from Aleutian Islands, Alaska. Unlike Greenland paddles, the Aleutian paddle has asymmetrical blades. One side of the blade is almost flat and perfectly suited for sculling and rolling. The other side of the blade (the power face) has a raised ridge running along the centerline of the blade. It helps to prevent the blade from chattering and allows for more powerful strokes. These two sides together give you a paddle both quiet and powerful. Aleutian paddles should be approximately 10 cm longer than a Greenland paddle.

OTTAWA PADDLES - WHITEWATER BOW SHAFT

When you are not forcing your hands to hold a paddle, your natural wrist positioning while sitting in a kayak follows an imaginary ark or bow. A straight paddle does not accommodate this natural tendency. The Ottawa Paddles Whitewater Bow Shaft bent shaft facilitates an ergonomic and comfortable wrist position, leading to less fatigue and longer ventures on the water. The trident grip allows for one paddle to comfortably fit all hand spacings, no matter your arm length or height. You can have a short paddle if you are tall, and a long paddle if you are short, or anything in between.

New cuts and a different neck made it more comfortable, larger Cordura reinforcements made it more resistant and durable. All the good features remained the same.
